

SNA Coronavirus Update

SNA, like you, is concerned about the growing spread of Coronavirus and the impact it will have on school districts and your ability to make sure each child has access to healthy school meals. We are working closely with USDA to remain on top of possible state and federal mandates and are actively monitoring the developments with COVID-19 as we plan for our upcoming events—the Legislative Action Conference this weekend in Washington, D.C.; April's National Leadership Conference in Tempe, Ariz.; and the Annual National Conference in Nashville, Tenn. SNA is committed to sharing vital information and will provide you with relevant resources via the Coronavirus resource page on www.schoolnutrition.org. In addition, we are currently working with the USDA Food & Nutrition Service on protocols pertaining to school nutrition operations and will likely schedule a webinar in the coming weeks to share emerging information.

We will keep the resource page updated continually with content relevant to you as a school nutrition professional, and encourage you to use the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and the World Health Organization (WHO) websites to get the most up-to-date information about the spread of the virus.

As the impact of the coronavirus becomes more well known, you can count on SNA to share information and provide updates on how it impacts you and school nutrition programs. In the immediate term, SNA encourages members and staff attending the 2020 Legislative Action Conference to practice good health habits.

If you have any questions or would like to share what your school nutrition program is doing to manage the situation, please connect with us on Facebook or at snmagazine@schoolnutrition.org.
