Successful Menu Planning: Transitioning to Current USDA Standards

Provided by the Cal-Pro-NET Center, University of California, Davis
In Partnership with the Nutrition Services Division, California Department of Education

California school nutrition directors, supervisors, and menu planners are invited to attend a one-day course entitled “Successful Menu Planning: Transitioning to Current USDA Nutrition Standards.” This course will provide an update of current USDA Menu Planning Requirements. Topics will include breakfast and lunch meal patterns, the definition of a whole grain, new fruit and vegetable requirements, offer versus serve, vegetarian options, sodium requirements, and others. The instructional team will include experienced school nutrition program directors.

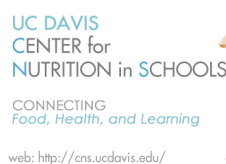

Registration is free, and is limited to 30 participants per class.
